REPORT
2023-24

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

SGT University actively promotes biodiversity conservation and sustainable land use. The university has created green spaces, botanical gardens, and a rich tree cover on its campus to support local flora and fauna. SGT conducts research on issues like deforestation, soil degradation, and sustainable land management. Regular workshops and community programs educate students and locals on the importance of conserving terrestrial ecosystems. The university's initiatives, such as tree plantation drives and wildlife conservation awareness, align with SDG 15, focusing on the protection and restoration of life on land.

8. Brief Write-up (300 -500 words) on the event(s) explaining activities undertaken

The use of Tobacco is not only a health issue but it is also an environmental issue. From start to finish, the tobacco life cycle is damaging at every stage: cultivation, production and distribution to the toxic waste it generates. Every Year on 31st May “World No Tobacco Day” and 5th June “World Environment Day” is celebrated to raise the awareness about their respective importance of days among the population. This Year on the occasion of Anti Tobacco Day; WHO has come up with the theme on “Tobacco is killing us and our planet” and keeping this in mind Department of Public Health Dentistry and Environment Committee, SGT University celebrated both mentioned auspicious days altogether on 3rd June 2022 (Friday). The event was organized for the awareness among Non teaching staff members of the SGT University.

The interns of dental college through their skit displayed how the tobacco is poisoning our environment during its entire life course. After which, a talk on Impact of tobacco consumption on general Health, oral health and our surroundings was conducted by faculty members Dr. Meenakshi Chopra, Dr. Charu Khurana and Dr. Abhinav Bhargava from Public Health Dentistry department under moderation of Dr. Shourya Tandon, Associate Dean, SGT University. In the end a pledge was taken by all the non teaching faculty members and attendees of the event to not to consume the tobacco in any form in future and seek help for tobacco cessation from dental professionals.

1. Interaction with students from different departments
2. To share the information on wetlands and their conservation status in India
3. To know the importance of wetlands and threats to them
4. To find out the strategies for wetlands conservation
5. To raise awareness amongst common people and increase public participation in conservation of wetlands
6. Short video making will grow interests amongst students for extracurricular activities

For whom: All the students of Faculty of Science, SGT University

Mode: Field visit (Offline)

Detailed Program Schedule:

An Educational visit to Sultanpur Wetland under Sultanpur National Park, Gurugram, Haryana was organized on 2nd Feb, 2023 by Kadam Association, Department of Environmental Science, Faculty of Science, on the occasion of WORLD WETLANDS DAY, 2023. Around 40 students along with four faculty members visited the wetland with the aim to raise awareness among students about the vital role of wetlands for people and planet as well as need of wetlands' conservation. Short video making competition at the wetland was another main objective of the visit. Students were sensitized about the present status of the wetlands across the Globe, their environmental services, conservation methods and status of the wetlands in India. Students were also informed about the adverse impacts of human activities on the wetlands. After the knowledge sharing session, students were set free for bird watching, photography and videography. It was a fruitful visit for the students to raise awareness about wetlands and to understand the role of public participation in wetlands' conservation.

About the Conference

The conference "Envisioning Inclusive Futures: Exploring Innovative Paradigms in Global Education" aims to address the pressing challenges and opportunities in global education. It encompasses a wide range of sub-themes, including innovations and challenges in global education, inclusive and special education, universal design, curriculum development, technology-enhanced learning, and sustainability in education. The conference will explore cutting-edge approaches to instructional design, examine the role of educational leadership and management in shaping inclusive learning environments, and discuss international perspectives on global education. Participants will delve into the future of teacher education and professionalism, considering how to best prepare educators for an ever-changing landscape. By bringing together experts, practitioners, and researchers from diverse backgrounds, the conference seeks to foster dialogue, share best practices, and develop innovative solutions to create more inclusive, accessible, and effective educational systems worldwide. Through presentations, workshops, and collaborative sessions, attendees will gain insights into emerging trends, discuss practical implementations, and contribute to shaping the future of global education.

Aim:

To foster a global dialogue on innovative and inclusive educational paradigms that address contemporary challenges in education, promote accessibility, and shape the future of learning in an interconnected world.

Objectives:

- To explore and evaluate cutting-edge approaches in educational technology, pedagogy, and policy that enhance inclusivity and accessibility in global education systems.
- To facilitate the exchange of research findings, best practices, and practical implementations across diverse educational contexts, with a focus on sustainable and culturally responsive solutions.
- To cultivate interdisciplinary collaborations among educators, researchers, policymakers, and practitioners to develop actionable strategies for creating more equitable, innovative, and future-ready educational environments.
